EFFECTIVE RESEARCHING OF CONTRACTORS (SERVICE VALIDATION)

The leading reason for most successful contract-related home projects is that residents do thorough enough research or service validations on contractors; the leading reason for most unsuccessful contract-related home projects is that residents do not do thorough enough research or service validations on contractors.

The Line Up

Therefore, when it comes to the home project you have in mind for which you anticipate authorizing contractor assistance, one of first things it is strongly recommended for you to do, is thoroughly research "contractors." That is, of course, pluralized since time and again it has been proven that your chances for getting the sort of service you need, in the reasonable price range you need, are much greater when you first interview at least five (5) contractors who are similarly skilled towards the sort of project you have in mind.

Initial Research

The "initial research" entails asking around about the best contractors for the sort of project you need accomplished. Sources in this regard are

1. word-of-mouth; 2. internet search engines; 3. contractors themselves.

What you are looking for are contractors who are best skilled for the project. People can tell you anything; the internet can tell you anything; even the contractors themselves can tell you anything. It may take a while before you have at least five (5) likely candidates for your project. Please, do not rush a thing. Once you have your candidates, you can then set up a brief introductory meeting. Ten (10) minutes at most.

The 10-Minute Meeting

It is recommended that you schedule these separately but in the same hour, on the same day. You will later hand each of them a special screening document (This is later introduced in this tutorial). Be certain they are whom they say they are.

Physically, inspect ID. You must see it clearly. If they do not have proper ID, it is recommended that you go no farther. Decline service. However, when contractors have proper ID, proceed. During this meeting, you can:

1. give each a walk-around or a walk-through (depending on your project's location), synonymous to discussing your hopes for project results, then winding down at the front of the house where you can ask his/her bid;

2. carefully, record the bid in your pad; note who gave it in writing, as well;

3. then ask the contractor to wait at the foot of your front steps or at the front gate until you return. Do not allow contractor inside for ANY reason since nothing has been finalized. If your screening document is not readily accessible, please, gently lock your door if you have to go more than a couple yards into the home);

4. return with your "SERVICE VALIDATION FORM" (It is a contractor screening document) and ask the contractor to take it with him/her, fill it out 100%, then return it within 24 hours (or at some later time) along with five (5) references from residents for whom he/she has "RECENTLY" done the same or similar work;

5. Repeat with the other contractors;

6. Once the contractor returns the 100% complete "SERVICE VALIDATION FORM," and the required five (5) residential references, you can thank him/her for dropping it off, then let the contractor know that you will get back to him/her some time on the following day or later;

7. Do the research or delegate it. Here are websites/links you can use which will facilitate the process:

Corporation Research

Office of the Secretary of State (If it's a corporation, even an LLC, government requires registration with this state department. Check it out!: Online Validation Search)

Contractors Validation-Statewide-Alaska

Heads Up: All contractors (whether corporation or not) are required to be licensed with the Alaska "Department of Commerce, Community, and Economic Development." Although some contractors may need special licensing and certification, since they are in business, mandatory licensure applies. But, please, check with the CBPL to find if whether or not the contractor working on your project also needs special "certification" to do so.

Special Note: When contractor says he/she is a member of Home Builders Association, Master Builders Association, or any other notable trades operation, please, ask to see valid and current ID to that effect. If no related ID, it is not advisable to listen for explanations since any certification or ID which increases the contractor's chances for landing the gig, is like money or a very valuable ticket. Contractors do not "forget" them. If the contractor claims "loss," ask:

- a. Which "association" office he/she is from;
- b. Write it down and ask for the number while you are at it;
- c. Ask for a contact name at that office (write it down clearly);
- d. Call until you get someone (An old trick is to enter the number exactly as given in the browser of your favorite search engine. Normally, you are able to trace it to its actual point or area of origination. You can also try "reverse lookup."

Nevertheless, even if a contractor checks out with whatever that trades organization may be, it is not recommended that you take that as all the proof you need of credibility. A thorough "service validation" (screening process) is required, irrespective. There are scandalous contractors who also have verifiable trades affiliations, credentials, and licenses. This is the reason it is strongly advised that you do a thorough reputation check (service validation), regardless. All bases must be covered. Everything must check out 100%.

Note: It is not advisable to waste time trying to look any farther if any contractor says he/she is a member of any specific trades organization but is not listed there. *Plus, always demand documentation (whether or not the contractor appears on membership roster). It must be current. Check it out personally or delegate. *Also, please, do not go by a contractor's membership, alone. Everything is recommended to be checked out and cleared. *If not validated/verified, it is recommended, in such case, that you go no farther with this person. It normally means trouble on the horizon. Please, take that literally.

Contractors Operating In Alaska Required To Have Related Bond Coverage And Certificate Of Liability

Contractors operating in the state of Alaska are required to be adequately bonded and have a certificate of insurance for public liability and property damage insurance. However, it appears that these are obtained, locally. This can mean that there is no statewide public data bank to refer to in order to learn if contractors in your area meet requirements. You may have to check with the office of the County Clerk of the municipality in which you want the work done. They will let you know if whether or not the contractor who wants to work for you is aptly Bonded and insured. Also the contractor should have a Certificate of Insurance to present to you. These should be specific to your County or Municipality. It is not advisable to regard this as drudgery since your inquiry may very well save you from an even worse situation. Better safe, than sorry.

8. Results you get from following the instructions of this Service Booklet regarding hiring are suggested to be most acceptable when contractor checks out 100% favorable. No gaps. Gaps in a contractor's information often indicate trouble ahead. If contractor doesn't check out 100%, it is recommended that you search for more reliable candidates using same procedure. Sometimes best candidates are just around the bend. Please, find them!

EFFECTIVE MEANS FOR FILING COMPLAINTS WITH RELATED GOVERNMENT OFFICES

There are an untold number of private home residents who are caught by surprise (largely due to neglecting thorough "service validations" on contractors) learning that the contractor they hired was not reliable. It could be for any number of reasons, from doing shoddy work to no work at all.

Also, in most of these cases, residents did the forbidden: They gave the contractor money in advance. The amount given is not as significant as the fact that it was not invested wisely. But before you file your complaint with the proper Alaskan authorities, please, note this:

Note: Formal resident etiquette which is universally accepted in contractor-related disputes is for you to first put forth a personal, documented effort to resolve differences before actually filing a complaint with the government. One reason is that many complaints can be resolved when you diplomatically approach contractors directly with a personal complaint letter. Normally, it's used as both a serious warning for probable legal action, and as documentation for the government, that, just in case the contractor is uncooperative, you have written evidence to the effect you tried. This adds more leverage to your complaint when you really have to file it with the "Consumer Protection Unit," and/or equivalent consumer advocate entities.

Reiteration: Government suggests that you first do everything you legally and reasonably can to resolve the issue, first – without government mediation.

For added measure, if you like, aside from sending your completed form off as an e-mail attachment, you can also print it out in hardcopy and send it by messenger, registered, or certified mail with any photos, other related documents, copies of receipts, check stubs, etc ... if the government expressly requests these from you to:

Heads up: For insurance complaints, Alaska "Division of Insurance" recommends (quote):

* "First attempt to resolve the problem by contacting your insurance company or agent."

* "Next contact our Consumer Services section if the problem is still not resolved."

* "If your issue is within our regulatory authority, we'll direct you to file a complaint."

ADDITIONAL INFO FOR RESIDENTS MAKING STRATEGIC CHOICES

Albeit that there are other crucial concerns of the private home settings, our primary concern is to inspire resident efforts towards:

- 1. Ensuring that you are financially sound enough to authorize the nature of home maintenance or improvement projects you have in mind;*
- 2. Ensuring that you are as familiar as possible about how your nature of home projects are correctly done before calling in trades people to successfully deliver;*
- 3. Ensuring that you have adequate protocol or a working system for scouting, selecting, declining, hiring, firing, and/or settling with individual contractors and/or contract firms;*
- 4. Knowing which remedial actions you can take in the event you feel/are threatened by dishonest contractors;*
- 5. Knowing which remedial actions you can take in case you feel/are defrauded by dishonest contractors;*
- 6. Ensuring that individual contractors/contract firms are legally cleared and verified (5 favorable customer references, included) to expeditiously perform your specific types of home projects in the state of Alaska.*
