EFFECTIVE RESEARCHING OF CONTRACTORS (SERVICE VALIDATION)

The leading reason for most successful contract-related home projects is that residents do thorough enough research or service validations on contractors; the leading reason for most unsuccessful contract-related home projects is that residents do not do thorough enough research or service validations on contractors.

The Line Up

Therefore, when it comes to the home project you have in mind for which you anticipate authorizing contractor assistance, one of first things it is strongly recommended for you to do, is thoroughly research "contractors." That is, of course, pluralized since time and again it has been proven that your chances for getting the sort of service you need, in the reasonable price range you need, are much greater when you first interview at least five (5) contractors who are similarly skilled towards the sort of project you have in mind.

Initial Research

The "initial research" entails asking around about the best contractors for the sort of project you need accomplished. Sources in this regard are

1. word-of-mouth; 2. internet search engines; 3. contractors themselves.

What you are looking for are contractors who are best skilled for the project. People can tell you anything; the internet can tell you anything; even the contractors themselves can tell you anything. It may take a while before you have at least five (5) likely candidates for your project. Please, do not rush a thing. Once you have your candidates, you can then set up a brief introductory meeting. Ten (10) minutes at most.

The 10-Minute Meeting

It is recommended that you schedule these separately but in the same hour, on the same day. You will later hand each of them a special screening document (This is later introduced in this tutorial). Be certain they are whom they say they are.

Physically, inspect ID. You must see it clearly. If they do not have proper ID, it is recommended that you go no farther. Decline service. However, when contractors have proper ID, proceed. During this meeting, you can:

1. give each a walk-around or a walk-through (depending on your project's location), synonymous to discussing your hopes for project results, then winding down at the front of the house where you can ask his/her bid;
2. carefully, record the bid in your pad; note who gave it in writing, as well;

3. then ask the contractor to wait at the foot of your front steps or at the front gate until you return. Do not allow contractor inside for ANY reason since nothing has been finalized. If your screening document is not readily accessible, please, gently lock your door if you have to go more than a couple yards into the home);
4. return with your "SERVICE VALIDATION FORM" (It is a contractor screening document) and ask the contractor to take it with him/her, fill it out 100%, then return it within 24 hours (or at some later time) along with five (5) references from residents for whom he/she has "RECENTLY" done the same or similar work;
5. Repeat with the other contractors;

7. Do the research or delegate it. Here are websites/links you can use which will facilitate the process:

Home Improvement Contractors Validation-Statewide-New York

Heads up: There is no statewide data bank for home improvement contractors. Licensure and regulation are done on the County level.

*The State, as you know, is comprised of two major jurisdictions:

New York City (NYC); New York State (NYS), respectively.

The counties, evidently, are operationally sovereign within the legal constraints of the overall state of New York. This, of course, means that contract-related credentialing and regulation of the activity of home improvement contractors is normally on a county-by-county basis.

However, in the City of New York, the counties have consolidated credentialing and regulatory standards for home improvement contractors. Counties included:

Manhattan – (New York County); Bronx – (Bronx County); Brooklyn – (Kings County);

Queens – (Queens County); Staten Island – (Richmond County)

*Contractors working in the City of New York with licenses from any other counties (in state or not) are illegitimate. It is not recommended to hire them because illegitimate contractors are part of the underground economy stealing from this part of the state since they are not paying their fair share towards supporting City revenue objectives. Literally, in these situations, contractors are not just stealing from one (1) county, they are stealing from all five (5).

*Conversely, home improvement contractors, [NYC-licensed] would do the same, in principle, when operating outside the City of New York. Home improvement contractors of the State of New York (City and all counties outside City), are required to be licensed in the counties in which they operate.

NYC Home Improv. Contractor License Search: Online Services Portal – NYC Consumer Affairs

Outside the NYC area, please, confirm with your County Clerk's office to find which government office in your county will best assist in your validation of a contractor's legality to operate in your area.

Special Note: When contractor says he/she is a member of Home Builders Association, Master Builders Association, The Better Contractors Bureau, NARI, or any other notable private, non-government trades operation, please, ask to see valid and current ID to that effect. If no related ID, it is not advisable to listen for explanations since any certification or ID which increases the contractor's chances for landing the gig, is like money or a very valuable ticket. Contractors do not "forget" them. If the contractor claims "loss," here are some investigative things you can do:

- a. Ask which "association" office he/she is from;
- b. Write it down and ask for the number while you are at it;
- c. Ask for a contact name at that office (write it down clearly);
- d. Call until you get someone (An old trick is to enter the number exactly as given in the browser of your favorite search engine. Normally, you are able to trace it to its actual point or area of origination. You can also try "reverse lookup").

Nevertheless, even if a contractor checks out with whatever that trades organization may be, it is not recommended that you take that as all the proof you need of credibility. A thorough "service validation" (screening process) is required, irrespective (that goes for electricians and plumbers, too. They are also contractors if they're not working for someone else.)

There are scandalous contractors who also have verifiable trades affiliations, credentials, and licenses. This is the reason it is strongly advised that you do a thorough reputation check (service validation), regardless. All bases must be covered. Everything must check out 100%.

8. Ideally, after a day or so, depending on your research using the SERVICE VALIDATION SYSTEM, and checking the 5 recent residential references for whom contractor claims having done the same/similar work, please, make your BEST decision. Results must be 100% favorable, however. If not, it is recommended that you search for more reliable candidates using same procedure. Sometimes best candidates are just around the bend. Please, find them!

EFFECTIVE MEANS FOR FILING COMPLAINTS WITH RELATED GOVERNMENT OFFICES

There are an untold number of private home residents who are caught by surprise (largely due to neglecting thorough "service validations" on contractors) learning that the contractor they hired was not reliable. It could be for any number of reasons, from doing shoddy work to no work at all. Also, in most of these cases, residents did the forbidden: They gave the contractor money in advance. The amount given is not as significant as the fact that it was not invested wisely. But before you file your complaint with the proper New York authorities, please, note this:

Note: Formal resident etiquette which is universally accepted in contractor-related disputes is for you to first put forth a personal, documented effort to resolve differences before actually filing a complaint with the government. One reason is that many complaints can be resolved when you diplomatically approach contractors directly with a personal complaint letter.

Normally, it’s used as both a serious warning for probable legal action, and as documentation for the government, that, just in case the contractor is uncooperative, you have written evidence to the effect you tried. This adds more leverage to your complaint when you really have to file it. Please, get your attorney’s advice on the feasibility of sending the contractor/contract firm the following Complaint Letter:

If after a period of seven (7) consecutive business days (unless your state/county recommends more time before filing your complaint), the contractor does not respond consistent with your request(s) for resolving your differences, you may then want to file your complaint without further hesitation. Your decision!

ADDITIONAL INFO FOR RESIDENTS MAKING STRATEGIC CHOICES

Albeit that there are other crucial concerns of the private home settings, our primary concern is to inspire resident efforts towards:

1. Ensuring that you are financially sound enough to authorize the nature of home maintenance or improvement projects you have in mind;
2. Ensuring that you are as familiar as possible about how your nature of home projects are correctly done before calling in trades people to successfully deliver;
3. Ensuring that you have adequate protocol or a working system for scouting, selecting, declining, hiring, firing, and/or settling with individual contractors and/or contract firms;
4. Knowing which remedial actions you can take in the event you feel/are threatened by dishonest contractors;
5. Knowing which remedial actions you can take in case you feel/are defrauded by dishonest contractors;
6. Ensuring that individual contractors/contract firms are legally cleared and verified (5 favorable customer references, included) to expeditiously perform your specific types of home projects in your part of the State.
